

Final Paper: Reflection On Your Reading, Writing, and Thinking—During the course of the semester, you have read about, thought about, and wrote about the various ideas of several authors, and you have analyzed their rhetorical strategies.

In this final paper, please do the following in 2 pages:

- Discuss which author you would choose for your future writing mentor (if you could only choose from the authors we read) and explain why.
- Discuss why you did or didn't learn to think more critically and analytically when reading the texts of others who are supposed to be experts. Do you think the way you will read texts in the future will change as a result of this class? If so, why? Or if not, why not?
- Discuss the development of your own writing throughout the semester. What progress did you make, and in what areas? What areas would you like to improve upon in the future? Which paper are you most proud of, and why? Which paper are you least proud of, and why?
- Add any comments about the class that you would like to share with me that would help me improve the class for the next group of students.
